

Hi [name],

I would like to tell you about, Communitier, a crowdsourcing platform that facilitates virtual volunteering.

Their current campaign is called Pathway to Employment, which is engaging corporate volunteers as mentors for university students looking to build their skills and experience.

These mentoring opportunities will help our staff build connections to the community, promote learning and development in their fields, and feel more connected with each other. And of course: empower the next generation!

They also have a variety of virtual volunteering opportunities our teams can get involved in and social good stories to grow our knowledge of social issues.

There's more information on their website and a way to get in touch with their team:
